Thanksgiving Week will teem with social frivolities.

Thanksgiving week comes with a rush of society. We have led up to it very nicely by the preliminary whirl of the last seven or eight days, which were for the most part devoted to entertainments in which women alone figured. We are now quite ready to do our best evening frocks and sally forth to later functions, where our men friends will show themselves.

By the by, it is next to impossible to get a gown made by any of the best talent this side of the holidays. Modistes and makers of robes are up to their eyes, rushing out and positively refuse to consider another customer. Fortunately, therefore, is the woman who either bought her dearest belongings—those which she planned to wear at the smartest evenings during the season—home with her from Europe or the East, or else gave her order before the rush began. Now it is impossible to get anything made, as I said, until late in January.

I am thinking that Mrs. Edith Francis-Nichols must be more than ordinarily thankful this week, since all her trousseau gowns are billed to arrive on Wednesday night. Not one of them has she had thus far. Her wedding, as you remember, was early in September, before most of the dressmakers in town had yet returned from their customary summer voyages of discovery. So the only thing to do was to order the gowns and wait for them. And for a bride, three months with no new frocks is certainly a horrible suspense.

However, Mrs. Nichols has given no evidence of being either than well-gowned, and I am quite convinced that only those intimate friends to whom she has told the melancholy story would ever have suspected that her entire trousseau was not at present doing active and becoming service.

The large number of weddings during November, too, has given many makers of last day of the week as their own, as is so prevalent in other cities. I cannot recall a single ball who "budded" this season on Saturday, but then they are not all out yet. Prospects for December fun are most excellent. No less than an even dozen balls are promised, and great is the rejoicing thereat. Emily Wickham's debut ball will come the first week of December, probably the 2th. Virginia Lee will also be introduced the same week with a reception and dance given by the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Lee. The first Friday edition will come on December 11. Then, during holiday week, we will have two dances for Princeton and one for Yale; a ball for Emily Quinn at the St. Louis Club, a ball by Mrs. Francis for Julia Knapp, a dance for the very young set by Lily Lambert, and in all probability a ball given by the O'Fallons for their young Virginia granddaughter, Miss Mary Randolph, who arrived last week to spend several months in the city. Miss Randolph and Miss Julia Knapp will be with Mrs. Hunt Turner this week.

I almost forgot the D. O. C. ball on December 12 and the Charity Ball on December 13. Really we shall be danced to death by the time January arrives.

Tuesday night's Apollo concert ought to have a brilliantly dressed audience, since the McRee ball falls on that same night, and many of the concert-goers will go later to the St. Louis Club to congratulate the two debutantes, Miss Rosalie and Miss Mary McRee. I anticipate that the thirty lothes all they could do to fill demands. The modistes have a dozen girls sewing night and day on Miss Maud Moon's trousseau, and will sew for nobody else until sixteen tiny silk blouses and eleven elaborate and handsome gowns are turned out for the pretty bride-elect.

As I said, we will share our amusements this week with the men. The first Apollo concert, the Hot-Time Minstrels, the first dance of the Thursday Club, the McRee ball, the Scudder-Green wedding of Monday and the Boyd-Dickson marriage on Tuesday, are all to be evening affairs. In addition, Mrs. Oliver Garrison and Mrs. Joseph Rumsey are to give luncheons to women, and Mrs. James Byrnes a tea on Wednesday. Mrs. Joseph Boyce and her daughters have cards out for a 5 to 7 tea on Thanksgiving Day, which means that men are asked, and doubtless many will drop in after the football games are over, and Mr. Franklin Armstrong entertains the younger schoolgirls set that same afternoon by her daughter, Miss Adele.

On the boxes and, in fact, much of the entire lower floor will be given over to a splendid showing of delectable toilets and a sparkling array of jewels.

There have been more changes in the box-holders' list this year than for several seasons. Mourning is largely responsible. The D. S. Holmes family, who have owned an Apollo box since the club was organized, will naturally not appear this season, owing to Mr. Holmes's death. The Simpkinses and Wallaces are in mourning, and also Mrs. Howard Bennett. Albert Sawyer, who is in poor health, expects to spend most of the winter in the East—at least until she is fully recovered. The Watling-Garrison box this season, their box going to a party, who occupied a stage box last year, are not in this season's list, and their box will accordingly be filled by W. L. Gilliam and his family.

The Stanards have no box this year. Mrs. George Castleman holding their box. The Joseph D. Biscoe family have taken a whole box this year, but instead have combined with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Filley and Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Pierce, the six to be in box K. The Joseph G. Millers will sit in the parquette this season, their box going to Charles Clark. Wallace Simmons has no box, but his father, E. C. Simmons, has taken Y in the right stage tier. B. P. Arfleck is not in the list this year. His box, which was D, will be occupied Tuesday night by Joseph Buse, who is a new officer

Miss Ann West Shaw, of New York.

Mrs. J. Leiland Boogher.

In the Apollo Club, being on the executive board, with William L. Chappell, George Carrie, and, of course, Mr. Robyn, chairman. Each member of the board will have a season box.

Mr. Charles Wiggins, as president, occupies box X when he is not merely warbling with the club. Mr. Walter Gilliam, as vice president, will, as before stated, have a stage box. Mr. Thomas J. Wright succeeds himself as secretary and treasurer. Doctor J. Leiland Boogher is a new box-holder this season. He has been on the waiting list for several seasons, and Mrs. Boogher's place in the left procession row, and will entertain a gay party on Tuesday night.

There are only a few more changes. Hugo and Henry Koehler will sit together, and the Zach Thibaults are alone this season. The Van Blarcoms have again come into their own, taking a rear box. They were absent last winter. Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Wolfe are new occupants of box V, and George Dean, instead of being in the rear tier, will sit near the stage on the left.

Many ladies are adopting the newest mode of wearing the hair—no, I distinctly do not mean tied up with bows in the back, which is being done to death; but, instead, pulled low and wavy over the ears. I saw Susan Creighton Williams at the play a few nights ago with V. Mott Porter, wearing her hair in this manner. It was becoming, to her, but does not suit all faces, by any means. Only the straight and classic features look well when thus backgrounded. We were supposed to have escaped from the city de Merode style, which raged so violently a few years ago; but this really approaches it as near as anything could. Elma Ramsey is another devotee to the mode; only she varies it by wearing a curl or two in the back.

a genuine thrill of surprise. Of course, there have been rumors; but they are never difficult to raise when two persons, masculine and feminine, evince a fondness for each other's society. Miss Whitmore visited Josephine Calhoun, who must now be called Mrs. Josephine Jones, last spring, and occupied the seat of honor on the Calhoun coach many a time and oft. That might have been taken as one significant indication. And the burning smile which has adorned Mr. Calhoun's features of late might have, to the observant ones, meant still more. But how in the world is one to know? Especially when those of the inner circle make bold and strenuous denials.

Miss Marie Williams first visited St. Louis as a guest of Miss Carrie Thibault, whose chaste sister she was in a New York school. Doctor Whitmore, her father, was for many years a practicing physician in St. Louis. The young lady is quite pretty in a demure, brunette fashion. Mr. Calhoun went to New York immediately after his daughter's wedding and will be married to-morrow. Mr. and Mrs. Jones witnessed the ceremony before they take the steamer for Europe.

Numerous guesses were about last Thursday as to whether Emma Whitaker's engagement would be announced at the afternoon reception given by Mrs. Whitaker and herself at their new and extremely big Westmoreland place house. But nothing of the kind happened. The rumor, however, will not down, and I should not be a bit surprised if a formal announcement were to be made very shortly.

The man? Oh, you know him, a leader in music and cotton markets, prominent in every important club of the city, and a standard beau for many seasons. Good to the debutantes, and especially good to Miss Whitaker, whose neighbor he used to be. One or two of the young women's girl friends scorn the idea, claiming that if anybody has any feelings, it is a New Yorker who crossed on the same steamer with the Whitakers this autumn, and who has, as you will recall, within the last year or two, taken New York society by storm by reason of his lacy and learned young man, who cares nothing for society, so that the gay world will not, in all likelihood, say any more of him in the future than it has during his years of college life.

Considerable regret has been expressed the last week that Miss Mary Alice McLaran is soon to take up her residence in Buffalo by reason of her approaching marriage to Mr. Hazard. She is so much admired by both men and women in society and so honestly liked by everybody who knows her, that I predict a serious state of depression when the wedding takes place. The Hazard family, into which she marries, is one of the best in Buffalo. It has wealth, and the bridegroom-to-be owns a fine old mansion in Delaware avenue.
